About Bókadeild Føroya Lærarafelags

Bókadeild Føroya Lærarafelags (BFL) is the Faroese Teachers' Association's Publishing Company and specializes in children's and youth literature. BFL was founded in 1956.

We publish around 90 books a year. We publish books for children and teenagers; additionally we also sometimes launch works in special formats and books for adults.

In addition to editing our own publications, we also sometimes edit and manage printing for others. We can take care of the whole process through to printing, in cooperation with the publisher, naturally. In most cases this means managing layout, proofing, images and printing.

Every year BFL joins the international book fairs in Bologna and Frankfurt am Main, as well as the Forum book fair in Copenhagen. We participate to make sure that we keep up to speed with the most recent developments on the book market and new trends in children's and youth literature. Such fairs are great opportunities for us to raise our profile as publishers, as well as to showcase the work of Faroese authors and illustrators.

Vár B. Jacobsen

Vár Berghamar Jacobsen is a Faroese dramaturge, actor and author. She was born in 1965, lives in Tórshavn and has a masters degree in dramaturgy from Aarhus University.

Vár has performed in many children's television series, including Christmas calendar shows, produced by Faroese public broadcaster KVF. She has taught theatre since 2001 and has been working at the upper secondary school in Hoydalar since 2013.

Vár Berghamar Jacobsen became a Faroese household name when she wrote and directed Likkulikkuleia, which was broadcast from 1998 to 2000. She since wrote the radio play Luddi and Lundisa, which aired on Faroese radio in 2004 and 2005. Along with other actors, Vár has been performing the children's play Luddi and Lundisa since January 2018. In 2018 Vár received the Children's Cultural Award from Tórshavn, Faroe Islands.

NEW AND NOTEWORTHY

Luddi and Lundisa/Luddi and Lundisa see their reflections

Picture books about the two pufflings Luddi and Lundisa, who one day peer out of the burrow and see the world open up to them. They take in the colours of the landscape, all the other animals and, suddenly, they discover that they can fly.

One day they gaze into the ocean and discover their own reflections. Now a whole new mirrored world opens up to them.

Delia Ciccurelli

Delia is an Italian illustrator. She was born the 22. May in 1975 and lives in the village Città della Pieve in Italy.

She has been an artist since she was a little girl. As a grown up she has worked for five years in an animation film studio for cartoons and later attended The Illustration Academy in Rome and took her diploma in illustration three years later.

She works as a book illustrator both in Italy and overseas.

In 2005 she arrived in Faroe Islands, which she had dreamed about and fell totally in love with the small island Mykines. She has visited Faroe Islands several times and on her last visit she met the author Vár B. Jacobsen and they immediately became friends and decided to work on a book about puffins. Hence Luddi and Lundisa were born!

Ingun Christensen

was born in 1968 and grew up in a bilingual home with a Faroese mother and a Danish father.

Ingun trained as a bilingual clerk in English and German and has a Bachelor of Education degree in English. She went on to work in the tourist industry, but has now spent many years working as a correspondence clerk, secretary and translator.

Ingun's passion for writing awoke early and she composed her first poem at the age of twelve, which she also set to music. In recent years she has focused more on her writing, and the interplay between imagination and wordplay in creative writing fascinates her. Her first work to appear in print was the poem Trælubundin (Enslaved), which was published in the Faroese magazine Kvinna in 2009.

Ingun lives in the Faroese village Hósvík and has a son.

NOTEWORTHY

Three women in Faroese history

Three novels about formidable Faroese women.

Annika í Dímun was pledged to a farmer as a prize in a game of cards. After they were married, she was drowned in the bay of Tórshavn on the accusation of killing her husband.

The Lady of Húsavík was one of the wealthiest women in the Nordic region. This novel is partly based on historical archives documenting her properties.

Løgmandóttirin á Steig is a book about the daughter of the Faroese Chair of Parliament. A visiting French captain wanted to marry her and intended to take her away with him on his ship. She was forced to go into hiding with her father's help.

Marin and the Heart Brownie/ Marin's Baby Brother

Two lovely children's books about the little girl Marin.

Marin has a great dad and a great mum. But they work a lot, they are always in a rush and don't have any time. Marin's best friend is Amalia, and she has a cool nanny, Randi, with purple hair, tattoos and a ring in her nose, and she has a great-grandmother, who always has time for Marin. One day great-grandmother gives Marin a strange doll. It looks very old and very grumpy, but it is very special, because it makes you not feel alone.

Marin is about to start school and she can't wait, but she is also waiting for something else. Mum is pregnant and the baby will be coming soon. Marin is very excited, but when little brother finally arrives Marin feels a bit left out. The baby takes up all her parents' time. He cries a lot and her parents are always tired now, they never feel up to doing anything, but little by little Marin discovers that being a big sister can be fun.

Skuggamyndir/ Silhouettes

Imagine sitting in a bus where everyone has a story to tell!

In these nine short stories from contemporary daily life, the author lets people tell their story. With this he allows the reader to glimpse the silhouettes behind the people. Their stories intertwine to reveal the ways in which we all affect each other.

In this collection we meet the teenager, who always feels his parents' eagle-eyes on him; the woman in the red mac on her way to work in the linen store with a sore wrist; the man with the moustache, who no longer wants to hide who he is; the young brunette struggling to find her footing between expectations and demands; the dark-eyed young man with the impression that the grey-eyes of the man next to him are ominous; the old man, who faithfully visits his wife at the nursing home, and the young mother struggling to balance work and family life.

Napoleon Smith

The illustrator Napoleon Smith was born in 1987 in Tórshavn. He teaches French and German. He spent his years as a student in France and Germany.

Nelus the leveret

Nelus lives in a deep hare burrow just under Malarbrúgv on Keldufjall mountain in Svínø. When the weather is good, all the leverets hop out to play.

Old granddad hare also lives in the burrow. And, like most granddads, he loves to tell stories about the old days. Granddad hare is so ancient that he even remembers when there was a war in the Faroe Islands!

One winter's day Nelus finds a roof slate in the snow, which he immediately tries to use as a sleigh. But it is not easy to steer a roof slate and Nelus gets stuck in the snow. Fortunately, Little Brother and Little Sister come to the rescue.

This story is so exciting and fast-paced that children will listen with baited breath.

The illustrator has covered the book in intricate drawings teeming with cute little animals, houses, people and nature as the backdrop. He has even included a map of all the places in the Northern Islands where the story unfolds. At the back of the book you will also find fun facts about hares, which have inhabited the Faroe Islands since the mid 18th century.

Veíða vind/Catching the Wind

Veíða Vind is a musical fairytale about three siblings, the four seasons, a dragon, an elven girl and a bear. It is also about fantasy and reality in a creative whirlpool. The story begins when the older brother is studying the medieval ballad about Ólavur Riddararós, who is known in related ballads in other languages as Olav Liljekrans and Clerk Colvill. Ólavur Riddararós has to set out for the heath to hunt the wild hind. The younger brother misunderstands this, but is inspired to go out and hunt the wind. His sister follows and their imagination is unleashed ...

Music was composed to the story by Kári Bæk who used the tune of a medieval Faroese ballad as the theme. The music fairytale was premiered in 2011 by the Faroese Symphony Orchestra and narrator, and in 2013 the performance of "Veíða vind" was taken on by the Icelandic Symphony Orchestra. An Icelandic translation of the book was published in conjunction with the performance by Forlagið.

In January 2019 the London Symphony Orchestra performed "Veíða vind" as part of the orchestra's Discovery Family Concerts Programme, with two more school concerts coming up in March 2019.

NOTEWORTHY

Hon, sum róði eftir ælaboganum / The girl who rowed after the rainbow

Falling in love, friendship and betrayal are some of the themes in this fast-paced teenage fiction, which is also well suited to adult readers. The book's main character is Argantael, who is clever, beautiful and popular in school, because she is always right on trend with the latest fashion. She seems to have it all, everything any teenager could wish for, but that is not the case. What Argantael wants more than anything is parents who care about her.

The reader gets a glimpse of Argantael's life with an indifferent father and a mentally ill mother – two adults, who are unable to focus on their child's needs. But Argantael is strong, right until another girl gets between her and Dagan, the boy she is in love with.

The book won the West Nordic Literature Price in 2016 and was nominated for The Nordic Council Children's and Young People's Literature Prize in 2017.
